

I resent the fact that a bank or anybody can call you at any time they want, have you drop what you are doing thinking it might be an important call, only to find out it is some telemarketer wanting to sell you something that you have already told them that you did not want. Send the information via the US Mail...